DETAILED ACTION

1. This Office Action is made in response to a Request for Reconsideration filed on 01/30/04 (entered into the file wrapper as Paper No. 5). Claims 1-16 are currently pending in the application. An action follows below:

2. The indicated allowability of claim 2 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Asars. Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Asars (USPN: 5,227,696, cited in IDS filed 04/07/2003).

As per claim 1, the claimed invention reads on Asars as follows: Asars discloses a circuit (see fig. 1) for providing a pulse (a voltage signal of the load capacitance as shown in fig. 2) to drive a capacitive load (a load capacitance 12, fig. 1, col. 2, line 67), the circuit comprising a first inductive component (a winding 18, fig. 1) and a second inductive component (a winding 16, fig. 1). As noting in figs. 2 and 3A-3E, and the description at col. 3, lines 22-68, Asars teaches the first inductive component (18) influencing both a transition time of a rising edge of the pulse and a transition time of a falling edge of the pulse, and the second inductive component (16) influencing the transition time of the rising edge of the pulse, so that the rising edge and the falling edge are asymmetrical. The elements in the claim are read in the reference.

Regarding to claim 2, as noting in fig. 1 and the description at col. 3, lines 22-68, Asars further teaches the claimed first and second currents, a first switching device (a switch 20) and a second switching device (a switch 14).

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 3-8 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. Regarding to claims 7 and 8, see the statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter in the last Office Action dated 10/31/2003. Regarding to claims 3-6, the statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter is below.

6. Claims 9-16 are allowed. Regarding to claims 9-15, see the statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter in the last Office Action dated 10/31/2003. Regarding to claim 16, the statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter is below.

7. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the claimed invention is directed to a circuit for providing a pulse to drive a capacitive load.

Dependent claim 3 identifies the uniquely distinct feature, "a second current that flows through said first inductive component and said second inductive component in parallel to produce the other of said rising edge and said falling edge", see claim 3, lines 4-6. Dependent claim 4 identifies the uniquely distinct feature, "said capacitive load is a panel capacitance in a plasma display panel". Dependent claims 5 and 6 identifies the uniquely distinct feature, "a controller responsive to a signal derived from said first inductive component, ... zero", see claims 5 and 6, last 5 lines. Independent claim 16 identifies the uniquely distinct feature, "a switch control ... to said first inductor", lines 23-31. The closest art, Asars, as discussed in the rejection above, discloses a circuit for providing a pulse to drive a capacitive load in a thin film electroluminescent device, either singularly or in combination, fails to anticipate or render the above underlined limitations obvious, in the manner as recited in claims 3-6 and 16.

Response to Arguments

8. Applicant's arguments, see the Request for Reconsideration, filed 1/30/2004, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1, 3, 4 under 35 USC 102(b), pages 2 and 3, and of claims 5, 6 and 16, pages 3 and 4, have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Asars. See the rejection above.
